

WASHINGTON TIMES
7 April 1986

INSIDE THE BELTWAY

Cord Meyer

Mr. Meyer is a former CIA officer, having served as chief of station in London. He is a nationally syndicated columnist and a lecturer at Georgetown University.

— John Elvin

Diplomatic reporting

Ted Koppel, anchor of ABC's "Nightline," and two correspondents for the Los Angeles Times, Robert C. Toth and Doyle McManus, will receive Georgetown University's Weintal Prize for Diplomatic Reporting. At the same time, special Weintal citations will go to Cord Meyer, whose column appears Friday in The Washington Times, and, posthumously, to Joseph Kraft.

The awards are endowed through the will of Edward Weintal (1901-73), a diplomatic correspondent who came to Washington in 1933 as a Polish diplomat. A committee composed of Charles Bartlett, Marvin Kalb, Hugh Sidey and former Ambassador David Newsom selects recipients.